

Kat's Note

It's been a long snowy winter here in Ontario Canada. Snowy enough that our 'shots from the balcony' column which is usually filled with sun sets and playful cloud formations it full of blowing snow shots this time around. It's been cold too, so this winter season kept us indoors for the most part.

It's been an awesome time to get some writing done, do some learning and develop some new philosophies and methods of doing things.

I'm really proud of Wayne releasing his first ebook over the winter. A Beginner's Guide to Website Design is a tremendous hit with everyone including me. I have actually learned the basics of HTML finally thanks to his book.

I am also really proud of our new community. We firmly believe that the community will make it easier for us to communicate with you and help us to develop the magazine to better serve you. Please drop by and join us there. We would absolutely love the opportunity to get to know you. The Magic Happens Community.

Over the last few months I have spent the time learning how to work with Squidoo, social bookmarking sites as well as our wordpress blog. It really has been an expansive time for me.

Anyway, I hope you enjoy the Spring Edition of The Magic Happens Magazine and I hope the feature 'Self Appreciation' serves you in a powerful way. I would love to hear from you and learn what your thoughts are on what we are creating. Please feel invited to email me at any time. :-)

Happy Trails

Kat
