

Red Light Green and A Whirlwind of Fun

It was a hot, beautiful and sunny day that saw us get on the train to Toronto for a whirl wind tour of interesting people. Like so many people, Michelle doesn't like to have her picture taken.

We met our friend Michelle at Toronto's Union Station and headed off for lunch on a nice patio with a gorgeous view on a busy street; the best place for people watching which can be very entertaining in Toronto.

We hadn't heard from Michelle for a few years so we had lots to catch up on. We had a nice lunch and a few drinks; leisurely enjoying the warm air, city sounds and good company. All things come to an end however and soon it was time to race off to the next appointment.

With Michelle in tow, we jumped on the subway to another part of the city to sit in on a solo performance of our young friend Jordan Faye. Jordan was performing in a small restaurant with his acoustic guitar with his loyal parents in attendance. It was nice to visit with Jordan's parents, do a little brain storming and catch up with Jordan a bit.

Again, the time comes to hurry on our way. This time, we have to head back to our town of Brantford in order to hear another friend's band play for the first time. A quick stop at Michelle's so she can pick up a few things for an over night stay and then off to the train station to head homeward.

This is Jeff. :-) Jeff is our 'go to' guy at the local future shop. Over the last year, Jeff has assisted Wayne and me to get the best deals on all of the computer equipment we have needed. He is a stand up guy with a lot of passion.

Jeff is lead vocalist for a band called Red Light Green.

Red Light Green can be found on myspace and we highly recommend you have a listen if you love passionate rock and roll.

The members of Red Light Green played with abundant passion and hey, they were really good too.

Their Love for their art is apparent on every members face as they gave everything they had to the crowd.

We would like to wish the boys in the band every success and abundance. Passion like yours deserves to win!!

We had a great time as you can see by the look on Wayne's face. ;- ) Or was that one too many beer? LOL

We will definitely be keeping an eye on this band. They are going places and we don't want to miss the excitement!

Good Job Guys!!

Happy Trails 2008!!
