

Kat's Note

How do I sum up an entire year in just a few words?

Adventurous

Strange – a good way mostly

Productive but often in unusual ways

Mostly, there was a lot of change and I suspect the changes are only just beginning. :) 2009 looks like it might be another year of change... Makes sense doesn't it? Have you ever known a year without massive change?

I've always held that 'if isn't change then there is death.' Nothing can really stay the same – it's simply not possible. Change is life and life is change. They go hand in hand...

The Magic Happens will change this year. I will change this year. You will change this year. The world will change this year.

All as it should be – life goes on...

The thing about change is that it often leaves us in the position of having a new beginning. I have a number of them in front of me for example. Some will work out and some won't.

Since I don't have any clue which is which, it is important that I take on each new beginning as though it will work out wonderfully. Otherwise, I might miss the opportunities for a wonderful ride to unknown places.

To often people shy away from change and when they are faced with new beginnings, they let the opportunity fade thinking it probably won't work out anyway... Too much effort some will say. Not enough time to pursue that, others will say...

Well I say Hogwash...

Let's make a pack together shall we?

Every time we are faced with change and a new beginning – let's do a little 'happy snoopy dance' shall we?

No matter what the change is, it rests on a rainbow and at the other end of it; there is a little pot of gold waiting for you.

So let's do a little dance for every bit of change and follow the adventures that are put right in front of us. :)

Happy Changes Everyone – For 2009

In Gratitude
