

Kitty's Korner

Hi! Our names are Whiskey and Socrates and we are the proud owners of 2 humans named Wayne and Kat. We insisted that they give us our own place in the magazine to tell our stories our way. After all, we are much smarter than our people. Hehehe.

At about mid July in 2005 we adopted these two crazy people. We thought life might be easier if we had some humans to take care of us. We are brothers from the same litter and so we have literally known each other our entire lives. These not so insightful people gave us the wrong names which is quite the chuckle for us.

Whiskey: My name is Whiskey. I have my own opinions about life, love and cameras. I hate that darn flash!! I'm the leader around these parts. Somebody has to do the job! If it was up to my brother and those other two, I wouldn't get any peace at all. When we were little, it was up to me to make sure my smaller brother got enough to eat because the humans always gave me too much food and Socrates too little.

Socrates: My name is Socrates. I enjoy being the playful jester type. If you are missing anything I probably took it and hid it. It's quite the giggle to watch our humans scamper around and look for stuff I hid. I really gotta wonder what all the fuss is about; after all, they're just toys. Wayne and Kat often call me 'the love muffin.' Little do they know, I snuggle with them cuz it suits me and they give me more treats that way.

They also seem to enjoy watching me plan and execute my playful attacks on my brother to which he usually retaliates with a scathing attack of his own. The chunks of fur he pulls out of me are worth it because it is so much fun to attack him and also it is a riot watching our people laugh at us.

Whiskey: Socrates is really inquisitive and smart. When Wayne and Kat take his picture, he always tries to figure out what exactly all those flashing lights are about. He is so smart he recently figured out how to get in the bathroom cabinet to hide. 😊

Socrates: Whiskey is really smart too but he's also a little evil! He figured out how to hold the bathroom cabinet closed so I couldn't get out. I can just see him sitting up there on top of the cabinet holding the door closed and grinning to himself. Doesn't he look just a little evil? Grrr bigger brothers!

Whiskey: Socrates isn't as smart as his name would suggest... He has yet to figure out that there are 2 doors to the cabinet and I can only hold one closed at a time. One day I was looking for my brother in all the usual places and couldn't find him so I went to the bathroom and opened the cabinet and looked inside. Socrates wasn't in there but what I didn't realize that Wayne had followed me and saw me do that. It can't be a good thing to have a human around that knows just how smart I am... (Are you beginning to see why I think the people mixed up our names?)

Socrates: Whiskey and I were really wanting some salad to eat but the humans weren't getting the hint so we started to chew on the house plants. It took a long time but finally one day when they went out and brought back some food for themselves, they also brought us some cat grass.

We were so happy that we spent most of the day rubbing up against it and chewing till we were satisfied. We couldn't understand why the humans seemed so tickled by our hunger for something to eat besides that stuff in the bag. They sat and watched us the whole time laughing and taking pictures. Humans!!! Go figure.

Whiskey: I was so happy when Wayne and Kat finally figured out that we needed so grass to eat. Frankly, I was getting a little worried about Socrates health. Some one has to take care of the little Fart. (Hehe someday I will be calling him the old fart.) Anyway, we both found it refreshing and wonderful to eat. Wayne a Kat are a bit weird though and took these pictures of us licking our lips after we were satisfied. Couldn't we please have a little privacy around here guys?

Socrates: I for one am very grateful that our humans finally caught on to what our dilemma was and took care of it. The grass really was lip smacking good. We eat grass every day now!

I would like to take a moment to thank our humans for being so good at attracting things once they know what we all need. Also for keeping the box clean and the food and water dishes full. Most of all, I want to thank Wayne and Kat for hugging me when ever I want them too!! For humans they really are decent enough folk.

Whiskey: Gosh am I tired now. It's a lot of hard work to think of everything we have done lately and tell you our stories. Till the next issue; take care humans! And remember to take care of the pets in your life – they are depending on you to make their life comfy and cozy. If you do that, I'm sure your furry friends will reward you with purrs and snuggles. ☺

Socrates: Yeah I'm with him... It's nap time!
Anyone got a free lap I can use?

From the humans: We don't know what we would do without these two at this point. They help us keep our days light and concern free, being a wonderful example of how to just let it all in. Thanks boys – you are the best!

In Gratitude
