

Trust yourself to do the right thing

What is it that makes us curious about the origin of all things?
How do we know where we are going?

What will happen when we get there? This is something we all ask ourselves. How about we let the Universe unfold itself in an easy manner trusting that our intuition will guide us to the right place for us at the right time?

This can be an easy process when you allow your inner sense of awareness to guide you rather than letting your mind grab onto every little thing that comes along. Wow I'm here right now and I'm OK in this moment, in fact I'm really good! I feel wonderful, grateful & appreciative for everything I have, do & am!

Let this be my mantra as I start each day. I love me! I am happy, grateful and reverent for being alive.

The world is vibrant and teeming with new & exciting experiences waiting to be discovered. I will go into it with a sense of wonder & awe at the beauty of it. As the day come to an end I will give thanks for all it gave to me & rejoice in my experience with gratitude & reticence.

Why not dive into the pool headfirst & see what happens? Have some trust in the process & allow yourself where it leads you! How cool is that?

As I begin to allow more & expect less, exciting & wondrous things begin to flow. How come we can't do this all the time? Simple answer:

We can!

We want life to be complex so we can have a reason to complain when things don't work the way we want. I am no different in makeup than you or anyone else. I just choose to be aware of my vibration & point it in the right direction. This is something that needs constant attention like driving a car or looking where you're going when you're walking down the street. You take your eyes off the road for a second & you are in a ditch! Take your attention away from where you're walking & you fall off a curb & sprain your ankle!

A little awareness & attention to your vibration as a daily practice will help ingrain that feeling of positive emotion that leads to positive action.

Yes I said action because you can have all the good thoughts & intentions you can muster, and without taking some action nothing happens. You will know what action is right for you; something inside you will just feel right about it. This is a guide for what works for you.

If this sounds like I am repeating myself from past musings it's because I am reinforcing the stuff that really works for me!

It helps if you write it down when you are feeling strong emotion or passion around an idea, thought or feeling.

Plant a seed, water it, nurture it, watch it grow & blossom. That's all you need to do, no worrying, stressing or fussing! Summer is here and You have some gardening to do. EnJoy!

David Little says: My Powerful Intentions are to attract the good into my life. To be Happy, Alive & Connected to the Source.

In this field of Awareness I will share my energy & abilities with other beings so they may enjoy & experience all there is thing we call life! I am a Happy, Connected, Aware in the moment person who believes anything is possible given the right energy & connection to Source. I would like to see this be available to everyone on the planet!

Peace
