

"Take the time to line up the Energy first, and action becomes inconsequential. If you don't take the time to line up the Energy, if you don't find the feeling place of what you're looking for, not enough action in the world will make any difference"

Note from the editor:

INSPIRED ACTION – you get a sudden urge to go to the library. You have no idea why you're going to the library right now as you just picked up a dozen books at the Half Priced Books Store. Yet an inexplicable urge is compelling you to get out the door and head for the library.

My recommendation? LEAVE NOW! Listen to that urge... it's inspiration to take action that could lead you to your goal. It may be running into just the right person, picking up just the right magazine, reading just the right community flyer... that will bring about the manifestation of your dream.

You see, just any old action doesn't do the trick but inspired action, that action you are compelled to take in response to an inner nudge...that's the kind of action that results in realizing your more 'perfect' life.

For instance, that unexpected and inexplicable urge to go to the library that overcame me last week resulted in my connecting with the perfect 'training' needed for me to set up the series of blogs I've had in mind for a long time.

Understand, I have had a plan for a long time and I've been doing all the 'right things' in following my 'action plan' yet I haven't experienced anywhere near the results I'm seeking. So last week, in a moment of great frustration, I stopped all that planned action. I didn't stop wanting the series of blogs that would inform, involve and inspire people... I just got too tired of struggling to make it happen... so... I let go. And waited for inspiration from Source to guide my actions. (By the way... I made a LOT of progress with my crocheting while I waited ;-))

Let me share a secret with you... when the inspiration to head on over to the library hit, it would have been very easy for me to talk myself out of it. I've had some transportation challenges lately and it was going to take me over an hour to get to the library that is only 10 minutes away by car. But
