

The most magnificent Creators don't want to get together with people who think just like they do. They're looking for people who have other thoughts, because out of the contradiction, comes ideas that could not be born out of sameness. Your relationships will be ultimately more if you're not identical twins just "yessing, yessing, yessing" to everything that the other one is about.

Note from the editor:

Wow! Talk about a harvest. This issue of The Magic Happens is another rich cornucopia of inspiration from our talented contributors. Our goal here each month is to be an advocate of living now in personal freedom, to be an example to those seeking personal freedom, to provide entertaining, interesting and growth promoting content while assembling a team of thriving contributors to offer many examples.

And the bonus for us, besides creating a magazine that we are all incredibly proud of, is that we also learn a thing or two along the way. I particularly feel that way about this issue.

In this Fall Issue you'll find the authentic voice of Bob Rush sharing his thoughts and insights when facing a major life change in Bringing It Home. For those in areas experiencing the powerful hand of Mother Nature in ways that sometimes seem to contrast desires you'll find special appreciation for Jennifer Burrows Walk on the Wild Side. As always you'll find humor and insight in David Franklin Farkas' column, Fluff Your Wild Arugala and Annette Aben will once again knock on the door of your inner child with her contribution, Autumn. You are also in for a treat this issue from Deliese Eros with The Spice for Sexual Fulfillment is Variety. And don't miss the insightful wisdom generously delivered with wit by David Franklin Farkas in The Long Way is The Short Way.
