

Go Figure...

I have always felt that I was a person that put myself out there and sought out new adventures to feel good about.

Heading into this edition of the magazine, themed The Harvest, I took a long time to reflect on my life and the extensive and varied adventures that I created and or were presented to me in my time.

I did the childhood stuff with a feeling of total freedom and adventure. I progressed to the awkward teen thing and moved ahead with my adult adventures. I played the game, but always felt things were missing in my life and now I have reached a point where I have come to understanding my harvest.

When I think of the harvest, I look back to my rural roots and come away with the planting, the caring and the reaping of the fruits for the harvest. This is a celebration of all that hard work and patience that has come together to end up with a plentiful crop that will keep me going for some time to come. I remember planting the tomatoes early in the spring and weeding the garden, caring for the plants, watering and talking to them and waiting for them to blossom into a huge crop of tomatoes for fall harvest.

I remember skinning them, boiling them, freezing some, eating many and making sauce out of countless others. With the planting of the initial seeds I progressed through the annual adventure from seed to the table.

Now as I sit here on this writing and reflecting, I see where my life has always ended up at the harvest.

We plant the seeds, experience the growth and end up with an adventure that is too our liking.

I have come up with and/or have been a part of so many wonderful adventures through my time of late. I will not bore you with my early adventures but would rather take you to some of the most recent.

Last spring, The Magic Happens Crew came up with the idea of creating a conference where we and others of a connected nature would speak at a new type conference. So yes, we planted the seeds within our soul and hearts and moved it forward. We now knew that we desired a conference as such and set about on this creation.

An idea is excellent but we soon realized that it was not going to happen with us moving our butts forward with all the detailed stuff. Speakers, venue, costs, advertising, marketing, how many speakers, how long each, who goes first, twitter, Facebook, Powerful Intentions, My Space and so on. The caring and nurturing has been endless. Oh yeah, we need a website also.....

Well, like all I have done before in life, a plan with a bit of getting off my butt, and all starts to come together.

A note went out to those we decided that were very magical in what they do in life.

Photos were coming in, details of what these individuals wanted to orate to the audience.

Website design was taking form.

The people I connected with, I started to speak of a new and innovative type conference.

Suddenly with all the above, there came the harvest which we now speak of.

Oh yeah, nearing the end of the website, I realized that we were lacking a dot com.

No problem, when things are happening, they rock. I went to my domain vendor and searched lifebymagic. There were many taken things such as .org and .ca and .info etc but lifebymagic.com was totally available. Go figure. Life is magical either or I have that really good vibration going on my path.

The harvest is a new conference set for March, 2010 in Toronto and in November 2010, in Vancouver, Canada.

The website is now live and it is what I consider, something that I have always dreamed of. It is me and many friends getting together to speak about our magic in life and what feels good to each of us.

Hence the name of our conference, [Life By Magic](http://Life By Magic).

There is the planting of the seeds, the caring for and now the harvest. Damn, life can not get much better than that. For those wishing to get acquainted with the site, please take a look at the [Life By Magic conference](http://Life By Magic conference).

Life has taken many twists and turns over my path but if there is one thing I will be remembered for is being a part of this life changing and inspiring look at a few people's diverse magic being displayed via this conference.

Please take a peek at this conference and send me a note and tell me what you think.

I appreciate each and every one of you and hope your harvest is on the same level as mine or better.

Till next time.....

Peace and Love
