

Wayne's Musing What's Up?

I have always considered myself an exceptional reader of people's energies, spatial energy, and even global energies. I have my off days in my sensing of but in broad terms, these energies just jump out at me.

As I have mentioned before, I do not believe in something as being good or bad therefore I accept and choose which ones I believe feel good to me. I am not one to judge most things in life even though I still do at times. When I do it is done with laughter and fun rather than being critical of another. I try to follow the motto of; I am a perfectly, imperfect human being. I do make wrong choices but always learn and grow from each choice I make.

For the last few years, I have been observing people and their energies and have come up with the statement,

“What's Up People”?

I work at a coffee shop and literally many hundreds of folks cross my path on a daily basis. The overall picture is not an enjoyable one for me where it comes to energy. I will jump out on a shaky limb here and actually give it a rough percentage. Connected humans 25 – 30%, other, you can do the math.

Where is the love, the laughter, the happiness in your life? As we all entered this physical existence, we came here with everything embedded within to create a magnificent life. We all have it inside of each of us so why do we choose to push that down and bring out the sadness, being unhappy and the 'poor me' aspect of life.

Is it the social economical situations, mass media as in television/newspapers, relationships, job stress, commutes, the need to keep up with the neighbors, the striving need to provide, the use of more electronic devices? Is it the lack of learning and growing from within holding a good percentage of people on their current life course?

I find that most people just do not know any other way to be in their life as they have done it 'that way' for so long. They consider being rude, hardly smiling and or just plain down or sad, a normal way of life for them. Change can be one of the fearful aspects to life but we all can change whatever we want as long as our willingness to move forward is there.

When I make eye contact, say hello, flash a smile and or ask someone something I usually receive a response as if I come from a galaxy far, far away.

Is it wrong for me to want to be happy?

Is it wrong to crank up that inspiring song and dance around the house? Is it wrong for me to give gratitude for everyone and everything in my life? What about my appreciating a gorgeous flower, the awesome sunset or a lovely friend, is this wrong? Is it wrong for me to want to grow me to a higher level of my being? What about my attitude of the glass is always half full, is it wrong?

You all can see where I am going here. I know this is just my opinion but I am sure anyone reading this article can give me a million reasons/excuses why you go down your path. I am not here to judge anyone for who they are or the directions they have chosen. I simply wish to put stuff on the table hoping that others may take a piece of it into their own being for further consideration. Remember, it takes a few facial muscles to smile and 4 times as many muscles to frown.

Once again this is just my personal perspective on life that I desire to share based on what I see happening on this planet via my energies. Please take it in the direction that feels good for you.

Until next time....

Peace and Love
Wayne
